250 Tories press for change

By NICHOLAS COMFORT Political Staff SIR KEITH JOSEPH, Education Secretary. was last night put under almost irresistible pressure by angry Conservative M Ps to drop his scheme for sharp increases in the parental contribution for students when he makes a Commons statement on the issue this afternoon.

At a private meeting of 250 Tory backbenchers—said to be the largest such meeting since the Falklands conflict-37 speakers out of 40 told Sir Keith that he had no choice but to withdraw a scheme which has aroused widespread protests.

Sir Keith declined to give the meeting any sign that he might shift his ground, saying simply that the occasion was one he was "unlikely to forget."

U.S. interest in Mid-East grows

By Our Diplomatic Staff MR RICHARD MURPHY, United States' Assistant Secretary of State, travels to the Middle East today or tomorrow in a move widely interpreted as a sign of new American interest in the area. Officially, his mission will be to try to break the troop withdeadlock between ebanon and Israel.

But diplomats said that coming immediately after the Palestine National Council meetraising in Amman, King Hussein's visit to Egypt, and the resumption of relations between America and Iraq, the move was of wider significance.

Amman King Hussein called for an international con-ference under United Nations auspices at which the Palestin-ians would play a full part. That suggestion was endorsed by President Mubarak of Egypt.

The new element in the situa-tion is the endorsement by the majority of the PLO for the idea. This has left Syria, which champions the anti-Arafat minority, on its own.

their contribution could spark off another political row similar to the storm which greeted news of their £150 million contribution to tribution to an Argentine loan in December 1982.

At the time, Mrs Thatcher came under fierce Parliamentary attack for allowing British banks to participate and for involving the British Government in an indirect contribution to Argentine finances through the International Monetary Fund. The Prime Minister was forced to back the banks by arguing that their involvement was necessary to stave off the risk of an international financial crisis and to protect money already lent out to Argentina.

However, she intervened later, in the summer of 1983, to prevent the loan being disbursed until Argentina had provided the IMF with verbal assurances of its intention to remove sanctions against British companies in Argentina. The latest British contribu-tion is part of a £3.5 billion international loan agreed over the weekend in New York as part of a rescheduling and new-money deal organised by the I M F.

The IMF is insisting that all banks with existing exposure to Argentina have to participate, providing British banks with little option.

Mr Guy Huntrods, a senior director at Lloyd's Bank International, represented British Banks at the marathon talks in New York which lasted 19 days. He made clear that British bank involvement had received the implicit support of the British Government.

"I have no reason to sur pose the Government will stand in the way of an international financing operation which has received the blessing of the IMF and in which British banks have an important part to play," he commented yesterday

Mr Huntrods also indicated that the Government had been kept informed all along of the progress of talks.

But the murder of Father
Popieluszko, committed by three functionaries of the banks would be free to put up Ministry of the Interior, was exceptional, not one of a series of similar events.

A Whitehall spokesman confirmed yesterday that British banks would be free to put up new money for Argentina. "We recognise that commercial banks must pursue their own interior of the commercial banks must pursue their own interior." banks must pursue their own interests," he commented.

In a letter to Sir Keith, delivered shortly before he was due to face questions in the House of Commons, Mr Marc Glendening. F C S chairman, wrote: "The financing of student maintenance cannot be divorced from the overall economic condition of the nation.

"If the party in Parliament is really serious in its desire to reduce the burden of taxation... it must give its full support to the Government on this crucial issue."

Mr Glendening added: "The party must not become a mouthpiece for the interests of high-income parents."

Instead, the federation advocated the introduction of a loan of up to £2000, less whatever grant the student was receiving from a local authority and parents.

NHS drugs cutback 'is privatisation by back door'

By DAVID FLETCHER
Health Services Correspondent

PLANS to save £100 million a year by limiting drugs which doctors may prescribe will lead to back-door privatisation of the National Health Service, according to Dr John Griffin, director of the British Pharmaceutical, Industry Association. Those who could afford to pay would get the drugs they wanted prescribed privately, he said.

But everyone else would have to make do with what was available from limited N H S lists.

He added that the Govern ment plan would lead to a two-tier system of health care contrary to the equal-treatment-for-all principle of the NHS.

It would also cause poorer health treatment for millions of people because it would encour-age patients to go straight to a chemist's shop to buy medicines rather than consult their doctor.

Dr Griffin said that patients with apparently trivial symptoms that could indicate more serious conditions would buy a suitable drug over the counter leaving their illness undetected. He added that the associa-tion was spending £250,000 this week alone on advertising to alert the public to the dangers of the Government scheme. The industry is reacting

What is happening to your personal freedom?

On October 7th 1984, Scientologists and other men of goodwill gathered together in the cause of establishing religious freedom and personal liberties for man. They formed an international association and adopted the following Pledge as a statement of intention towards bringing about continued survival of mankind:

PLEDGE TO MANKIND

raime and again, throughout the troubled A history of civilisation on this planet, new ideas, new religions and constructive thought have met with violent opposition. Such attacks come from those who would preserve the status quo and particularly from those who seek to preserve and enhance their position through the domination, subjugation and even destruction of others. For this reason new religions have been born in blood at the cost of great sacrifice and suffering by adherents. It is only through a unity of purpose and unswerving commitment by a dedicated group that new ideas and new religions survive and Scientology® has been in existence now for some thirty-four years. During that time it has suffered all manner of attacks from the forces of oppression in various countries. Yet Scientology has survived and expanded because of the dedication of its members and because it is a force for goodness and freedom which is easily recognised by men of goodwill; despite the vicious lies which are spawned by those who would enslave mankind and which are carried by the media.

Scientology is experiencing the greatest expansion and prosperity in its history. International in scope, Scientology each week frees more people from the debilitating effects of drugs, ignorance and other sources of aberration and moves them on the path to greater awareness, self-respect and dignity than all other groups combined.

et as we have learned in our thirty-four vears, whenever we expand, we are years, whenever we expand, we are attacked, commensurate with that expansion. And today is no exception.

n the United States, which was once thought Leto be a haven of religious liberty, we are the targets of unprincipled attacks in the court system by those who would line their pockets from our hard won coffers. Bigots in all branches of government, fearing the success of Scientology, are bent on our destruction through taxation and repressive legislation.

Te have been subjected to illegal heresy trials in two countries before prejudiced and malinformed judges who are not qualified or inclined to perceive the truth.

n Canada and Germany, our Churches have Abeen subjected to vicious raids reminiscent or the historical genocide attacks on religions that took place in "less informed" times and societies.

The news media chooses to ignore the good works and miraculous successes of Scientology and instead seeks to poison public opinion through vilification of the religion and he detractors of Scientology know full well that it is a proven, effective and workable system for freeing mankind from spiritual bondage. That is why they attack. They fear that they will somehow be threatened by a society which is more ethical, productive and humane through the influence of Scientology and Scientologists. Thus when we expand, to that degree we are attacked.

Up to this day, the responsibility for defending Scientology has been on the shoulders of a desperate few. And so it will continue in large measure.

et, in order to continue the quest for a new civilisation where honest men have rights and freedoms abound, the assistance and dedication of each and every Scientologist and other men of goodwill is essential. The road may be difficult and may get worse due to the rapid decline of civilisation and erosion of personal liberties at this time. But united in purpose and dedication, we shall prevail for the benefit of all mankind.

e pledge ourselves, without reservation or any thought of personal comfort or safety, to achieving the aims of Scientology: "A civilisation without insanity, without criminals, and without war, where the able can prosper and honest beings can have rights, and where Man is free to rise to greater heights".

e invite Scientologists and other well-intentioned people everywhere to join us in this pledge.

To date, thousands of men and women of goodwill from over 50 countries on 5 continents have joined in this purpose and signed the Pledge to Mankind. If you care about your personal freedom and if you would like more information on how you muscle. But when she was finally admitted to hospital five days after becoming ill there was a four-hour wait before she was seen by a qualified doctor. An operation revealed she had a husst amondie.

One doctor believed Linda Shoobridge was suffering from a pulled stomach

Linda, an only child, was put on a life support machine at Northampton General Hospital but died when it was switched off nine days later.

At a Northampton inquest last week. Mr Michael Collcutt, the coroner, said Linda, of Nether Lane, Flore, Northants, had died as the result of a medical mishap.

But the coroner added that he was concerned about the length of time it had taken for her to be examined by a quali-fied doctor. fied doctor.

The inquest was told that Linda had been examined by a woman student doctor after being admitted in July. She was unable to get the advice of the senior house officer for nearly four hours because he was in the operating theatre.

The coroner recorded a verdict of death by misadventure but Mr Reginald Shoobridge, Linda's father and a local magistrate, called for an investigation into the case. The official internal inquiry is being carried out by a senior hospital administrator, a nursing officer and a consultant surgeon, and will last several days.

Technical expertise

The design brief given to Landor, in consultation with Chester Jones, a British design company, was to produce a dis-tinctive corporate identity that would make British Airways stand out from all other air-lines, and reflect the carrier's customer orientation in terms of colour and warmth.

It had also to be professional and precise, reflecting BA's technical expertise and portraying the airline's pride in origin as the British national flag carrier.

In the Abolition Bill, Patrick Jenkin states quite clearly who he's appointing to run London if the GLC goes.

Himself.

It gives him direct control over all the Whitehall committees and joint boards which would take over the majority of the GLC's functions.

A free hand to do whatever he wants to do whether anyone else likes it or not.

And that's not all. It also gives him the power to change the details of the Bill itself after it's been approved by Parliament. It's an extraordinary precedent.

One which not only denies all Londoners their say, but also denies Parliament its rightful role in the process by which Government policies are implemented.

Right from the start, the Government has made it clear it isn't going to let the people of London decide how London's run.

Now it seems it isn't going to let the Houses of Parliament decide either.

MINISTERS MOCKED BY

HEATH OVER COUNCILS BILL

By PETER PRYKE Parliamentary Correspondent MR HEATH denounced the Government's Bill to abolish the Greater London Council and the six metropolitan councils in the Commons last night as a pretext for obtaining more control over local authorities.

Refuting the claims of Ministers that it would lead to savings and greater efficiency, he said that in fact it was for one purpose only.

"It is so that the Govern-ment can have more power over local authorities, to deny them the money which their local constituents want them to have in order to carry out the services they want. Mr Jenkin. Environment Sec-retary, sat stony faced and Labour MPs laughed delight-edly as Mr Heath mocked Ministers for having "stood on their heads" over abolition. "The Government have quite enough to do without this." he said amid laughter. "We do seem to be upsetting quite a number of people."

"He denied it and said he had been standing on his head all the time, and it was our fault for not realising it." Mr Heath said amid laughter.

"Mr Jenkin savs it does not realising to do a U-turn and have ready a plan for a London-wide elected authority to replaced by books of tokens.

"Once you have used your tokens that will be unfortunate and that will be the end of your token fare," she said. "Many old people will and the said amid laughter.

Mr RIDLEY, defending the proposed joint boards for passenger transport, said the London boroughs already had responsibility for 7,000 miles of London roads, whereas the GLC had 895 miles.

GLC had 895 miles. Seven per cent. of these would go to central government and the remaining 850 miles to the boroughs. But 300 miles of roads of major strategic impor-tance would require the Trans-port Minister's consent to measures which would seriously affect through traffic.

Some notices appeared in yesterday's later editions.

Music / Oslo Philharmonic, Yansons

WITH a striking Russian conductor, Mariss Yansons, in charge of the Osio Philharmonic Orchestra, it should hardly have been surprising that its return visit to the Barbican on Monday night was dominated by a grand Russian symphony, by an imposing, grippingly vivid account of the fifth symphony of Shostakovich.

There was one Norwegian work, the predictable, and what more than one of the predictable, and what more than one of the coda's hollow joy.

It was a performance that support that neatly underlined such ingromental detail as plendour ought to have been predicted by the splendidly dashing, virile and dramatic playing of Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture that introduced this fine orchestra's programme.

Robert Henderson

In was a performance that ought to have been predicted by the splendidly dashing, virile and dramatic here receiving its first performance. And a conductor, Edwing Roxburgh, mount a podium of an hour or so, was apparently inspired by Mr.

Robert Henderson

There was one Norwegian Framme, work, the predictable, and what we still continue to think of as the ubiquitous Grieg plano concerto. Though it should be said that it is a piece that now appears far less frequently than it used to in our concert halls. In the Norwegian planist Jens Herald Bratlie it bad an aptly strong, supple soloist, the quick reactions and powerfully romantic style of his playing containing many fresh and distinctive ideas about its well

With the corporate richness of the strings providing an impressively firm foundating for the confidently and sharply eithed orchestral sound, the Shostakovich symphony was given, on the other hand, a performance of a challengingly graphic emotional commitment.

From the high level of expectancy created by its warmly expressive, eloquently shaped opening string melody, the long first movement was built with a formidable concentration to its implacable central implacable central condinated of chamber ensembles.

The proof of tradition is the condinated of chamber ensembles in place of animal acts, banned in London, there will interpret the condinated of traditions. Franca Rame, perhaps because of Miss Edmends's use of clenched understatement to convey deep feeling. She probably owes much to the supple direction of Sue Dunderdale.

It seems there are only two builders to choose from these days.

One is called Bovis Construction. And the other, 'me too.'

Because whenever a project is built under a Management Contract it's using a form of building pioneered, developed and brought to professional perfection by Bovis alone.

In fact, it's taken the rest of the industry a full decade to land on our idea - bringing, very often, some of their old habits with them.

So why build your hopes on a copy when the original's on the other end of 01-422 3488?

Aleck Craddock, managing director of Harrods over the past four years, and widely respected as the last gentleman in the retail trade, has just left for his beloved golf course and the trips to France he so loves.

Tall and gentle, quick to deprecate his own abilities ("I always dread every new job — I'm sure they'll find out I cannot do it"), Craddock sprang into the nation's consciousness at the time of the Harreds'

IRA bomb, when he so od of guickly rallied staff and ey've supporters to pull the store together again and to comfort the injured.

> But some of us have known for years that people are his chief concern. Far from the computerised world of today's store chains, Craddock. loves the verve of individual decision, finds the work of a young fledgling buyer one of the most exciting things in life.:

"You've got to dare you've got to have pan-ache. You cannot relate every decision in retailing to a committee or to a.

computer. I love our training scheme here: we come up with real individuals, lively people who make the store hum."

Cheese was his first love and his first assignment at remember which came first; his love of cheese or his love of Normandy. He and Mrs Craddock frequently potter about that part of France, re-living his early buying trips when, as Harrods' cheese buyer just after ration coupons came off, he scoured the farms searching for unusual cheeses there. He was the one who discovered Bresse Bleu for Harrods: it is now its best-seller. But Stilton is his favourite. One of his dreams as he clears his desk now is to potter with absolutely no déadlines, find a village they both love and simply settle in for a fortnight or

"I haven't had a fortnight's holiday for three vears-this Lonrho drama -has kept me in and out of boardrooms. While I feel it was a necessary fight. I do rather begrudge the time it took me away from the floor, from calling on staff and hearing of their problems. I love to help. That's what life is all about."

Among Craddock's many triumphs and innovations during his past four years as managing director and chairman has been the rabbit-like multiplying of the gift and souvenir items

World-wide is the Hartods empire: world - wide are Craddock's own professional friendships. He particularly salutes, on the American scene, the great up-marketing job done at Macy's. the merchandising verve of Bloomingdale's, the chie of Bergdorf's and Neiman-Marcus In the Far East he is staggered by the fine selling techniques and display of the Tokyo department stores.

Far from the despair, born in the Seventies, and born of the great upsurge of boutiques, Craddock now feels department stores have an enormous role to play in sheer shopping excitement. " We must keep people entertained, we must display and tempt imaginatively. But no. I don't think all department stores will survive this decade in Britain. Sometimes shudder as I enter their fashion departments."

Speaking of fashion, Mr Craddock found himself almost terrified of it as he mounted the ladder from provisions boss to general manager. Now he loves it, and the store shows his enthusiasm, but I still feel it unfair that be has never yet tackled the storm and stress, the push and shove and ankle-deep Tuileries mud. of covering the big Paris ready-to-wear collections,

But closer scrutiny of the photograph showed that several of the jumpers had been hand knitted to a slightly difterent patters, one which could not be reproduced by machines. To reproduce the pattern of the hand keit jumper, the original photograph was en-larged as much as possible. BETTER TO BE A WOMAN

TT is an article of faith L among some campaigning groups at present that unemployment is a bigger problem among women than among men.

This is particularly true of many London and South East-based feminist groups and the local authorities that support and finance them. It is the same thinking that decrees that any problem is aggravated by being

But in London at any rate, it is males who are suffering from lack of jobs. More boys than girls face problems finding work on leaving school The figures for all age. groups show the same story, unemployment figures for women being on average half those for men.

In Lambeth, the latest monthly statistics show that unemployment for women is going down, while that for men is rising.

The overall position continues to be bad: 155 vacancies on offer at Brixton job centre, for instance, with 9,344 unemployed looking for work. But division by sex reveals an interesting trend: while men's unemployment has crept up by 0.4 per cent, in the past month, that for women has slid down by 1.5 per cent.

Crusaders will talk

But the GLC has released the information because it enables promotion of a favourite project. They are urging that the jobs be given to women who are currently at home looking after small children. The Council is funding nurseries, childcare allowances and retraining schemes so that women can gain access to this field of work.

The object is to draw into the paid workforce, women who do not at present consider themselves unemployed.

I cannot be alone in my failure to see how this is going to do very much to reduce unemployment levels. But, then, is that really the object? The feminist campaigners and the authorities financing them do not necessarily view unemployment - or homelessness, or other problems - as challenges to be overcome, in the way the rest of-us do.

AFTER ACCESSION

THE EEC SUMMIT IN DUBLIN was dominated by a single question. On what precise terms should Spain and Portugal be invited to join the Common Market? It is in truth a more tractable issue than the long-running budgetary wrangle which preceded it. To a large extent the 10 member States appear to have agreed terms in respect of wine production, fishing rights and Mediterranean agriculture which can now be offered to the Spanish and Portuguese. Only the Greek Government has entered a general reservation (while accepting the specific terms) on grounds which have nothing whatever to do with principle. The Greeks are anxious that an expensive package of agricultural subsidies grandly called the Integrated Mediterranean Programme, of which they are the chief beneficiaries, should be agreed before the onset of Spanish and Portuguese competition.

The intellectual éminences of the Common Market, among whom Mrs Thatcher can perhaps be numbered after her speech last week in Avignon. tend to see the issue of the accession of Spain and Portugal as representing the last storm before the dawn. Once this matter has been dealt with, it is suggested, the Common Market can forge ahead into an exciting new phase. Such rather blind optimism of course presumes that Spanish and Portuguese membership is a good thing for all parties, besides presupposing that the Community's financial problems have somehow receded for ever. Whatever good or harm membership may do to Spain and Portugal, it is almost certain that their accession will weaken such cohesion as the Community presently enjoys, besides increasing. albeit by a comparatively small amount, its budgetary burden. The EEC Summit in Dublin had passed the point of considering such fundamental issues. Only the mechanics of accession were of interest and, now that they have been finally worked out. Spanish and Portuguese membership is almost a formality. But what then? So long as agricultural subsidies continue to take up so much EEC money there can be no bright new dawn for Europe. Not even the new "budgetary disciplines" finally agreed at Dublin, which involve the setting of cash limits by EEC Finance Ministers for the more profligate Agriculture Ministers, will make very much difference. Greek dissent at Dublin is but a foretaste of squabbles about agricultural spending among Mediterranean countries. Financial problems, far from being banished, hover in the shadows.

Hovering there too is the emotive question of European union. Discussion of "institutional development" of the Community was apparently deferred for six months. It is hard not to foresee then some kind of confrontation between the representatives of the two European philosophies, of those, on the one hand, who are most jealous of their national rights and, on the other, those more willing to forfeit more of their rights in the common good. Ironically, yesterday's events have provided ammunition for the latter school. If a single member. in this case Greece, can so effectively exercise a veto on Community business, what future can there be without moving nearer to majority voting? It is a challenge the other school, which includes Mrs Thatcher, will have to answer.

AID GOING ASTRAY

SINCE THE BEGINNING of October Western countries have given generously towards the relief Ministers' transport of the Ethiopian famine. The public has given more than 1100 million to charities. Western Governments THE MOST SEDUCTIVE perk have promised aid worth perhaps one and a half | enjoyed by Government Ministers times or even twice that amount. Even the Russians have offered the loan of some helicopters and aeroplanes. But though many lives have been saved as a result, by no means all governmental aid is being spent on the purposes for which it is intended.

according to Mr Galloway, director of War on Want. Mr Galloway, whose political sympathies are who frequently have to wait around said to lie on the Left of the Labour party, has just returned from Ethiopia. He says that the Marxist Government there is stepping up expensive bombing raids in Eritrea and Tigre and denying those i rebellious provinces aid, besides selling food aid intended for victims of famine. He claims to have witnessed an example of a large-scale misappropriation of aid. Mr GMLOWAY's point is not that people should stop giving aid the says that charities are able. to administer their own lunds) but that Governments should try to ensure that their aid goes where they , intend it to. He believes that some sort of international commission might help them to achieve

Mr Galloway is obviously not opposed to aid in 1 Yule cheer principle. His reservations concern the present case of Ethiopia. Even so, he has reportedly been accused by a number of charities of "rocking the boat." Firer reasoning is presumably that as a result of his report of the actual state of affairs people may not give to charities. But the truth will get out sooner or later. Unless the specific problems described by Mr. Gyrtoway are attended to people may come to beneve that famine aid is futile, in particular, though it may not be possible to persuade Col. Mexciste, the Ethiopian leader, to accept an international commission, the British Government should insist that its aid be properly directed. The Government's purpose in giving aid is surely not merely to appear virtuous in the eyes of the electorate but also to save as many lives as possible.

ACID WISDOM

THE GOVERNMENT IS TO BE congratulated on following this newspaper's advice about what not to do about "acid rain". Britain is not to imitate those countries which plan to spend huge sums on altering power station chimneys in the hope of preventing the escape of sulphurous acid. The reasoning is straightforward. The simplistic theory that power station emissions are the major cause of acid pollution is not supported by any convincing scientific evidence. To instal these devices in British power stations would have cost more than £1.500 million, forcing up electricity prices by at least 5 per cent, over the next decade. To do this without any quarantee that it would do any good would have been nickless. It is likely that the West Germans in particular will deplore Britain's decision. Ever since the militant Green party won so many seats in the Bundestag, German politicians have tended to show a knee-jerk reaction to environmental issues. They now hold the uncompromising view that British power stations are destroying the Black Forestwhereas in truth a mixture of local pollution and I gets closer and closer to earth. natural causes are probably to blame.

KENNETH MINOGUE takes a look at two predictions of what lomorrow is likely to hold for those confident of gelting that far a long time to catch up. The future socialism needs is a potential catastrophe which can be averted only by governmental action. Thus in 1976 the Club of Rome predicted the exhaustion of the raw materials we need, and the more expertly-researched Global 2000 Report to the President" (1980) envisaged the world's population out of control, with riots and vandalism spreading through vast ungovernable cities. Both thought governments must act, urgently. The formula for socialist futurology is simple: disaster is imminent. unless . . . Unilateralists have been making our flesh creep at the vision of nuclear devastation, unless we disarm. Environmentalists demand more controls to avert bigger and better threats. William Clark has recently predicted a catastrophic war between the north and the south unless the richer countries hand over more cash to international development agencies.

This kind of future isn't just looking into a crystal ball. It's the future of the salesman playing upon our hopes and fears in order to sell us something. The technique is to extrapolate a few selected trends and let imagination rip. Hysteria helps.

The first really talented futurologist of this kind was Karl Marx. The "Communist Manifesto" pre-dicted both imminent catastrophe and a glorious future. What it had to sell was the winning side and it was so convincing that a centuryand-a-half later devoted followers are still to be found muttering crisis of capitalism." like needles

Conservative futures used to be gloomy in a low key: they pictured a slow, steady decline rather than the apoculyptic imaginings of the revolutionary vision. In the past few years, however, optimistic libertarians have been taking a hard look at socialist doom-mongering and in two books published recently, have supplied a brilliantly argued counter-attack. Their message is, in effect. Trust the People and leave well enough alone.

THE Resourceful Earth," an array of expert evidence edited by Julian L. Simon and the late Herman Kahn, destroys one anxiety which has been part of mentalists like St Cyprian were complaining that the mines gave less gold and the crops were meagre. In an age like ours, whoever owns the future owns the present. The tide of argument in Reaganite America and Thatcherite Britain has moved away from socialism towards the classical liberalism of the market, but it has taken the future a long time to catch are affront to common sense: surely, working normally, for most work it would seem, there's only a finite quantity of such minerals as oil and coal and we are getting through them at an alarming rate. The short-term answer to this argument is that virtually all past predictions of imminent shortage have proved wildly wrong. The deeper argument. however, lies in the very nature of a resource.

Raw materials only become resources in relation to particular technology and as technology changes, so too will the value of resources, such as oil.

Like all libertarian optimism, this reason for hope assumes that human beings will behave rationally. People are, however. subject to unpredictable and irrational fears, especially as members of movements, One theme running through "The Resourceful Earth" is that heeding the anti-nuclear lobby endangers our health. One type of argument computes risks in terms of loss of life expectancy (LLE), which averages actual damage over the entire population. The LLE figures indicating the risk in America if all power stations were nuclear is 40 minutes. Coal power plants have a far higher

So, as Bernard L. Cohen. noting that all new power plants recently planned in the United States have been coal burners, puts it: "Every time a coalburning plant is built instead of a nuclear plant, many hundreds of people are condemned to premature death."

Several writers in "The esourceful Earth" are struck by the fact that, in proportion as the expectation of life and level of nutrition has vastly increased in developed countries, many people have been struck down by terminal hypochondria about diet. A. E. Harper remarks: "Somehow, since the discovery of antibiotics and the ability of modern medicine to prevent most deaths from infections, the fact of death seems to have become unacceptable to the public, to politicians and even to much of the medical profession," and he goes on to criticise the idea that "there are simple dict-related solutions for highly complex medical problems."

seems to revolve round computers. Genetic engineering will solve problems ranging from human malformation to many types of cancer. It will also help in getting out the oil to be found in shale. McCrae would agree with the optimism of "The Resourceful Earth," but he puts it more exuberantly: "Energy and minerals galore, but bugs with everything."

Crime won't be much of a problem either. Drugs will give some help, but the main change will lie in the development of new forms of surveillance. It will be possible. for example, for the police to keep constant track both of criminals and of the guns they might use in carrying out their crimes. Brain scanning will allow the surveillance even of some people suspected (perhaps unjustly) of criminal propensities.

McCrae is one step ahead of those who will find this a sinister invasion of privacy. Freedom lies in individal choice and is exercised by voting with the feet. For this is a pluralistic globe in which most services have been privatised and government is predominantly

This feature of the McCraevian future reveals its fundamental, principle: getting government off our backs. Mankind discovers over the next 40 years that govern-ments are inefficient ways of getting most things done. Self-serving and largely unaccountable bureau-cracies, especially in the Third World, will succumb to the demands of an increasingly sophisticated world population. It will rid itself of posturing demagogues and begin to treat the whole planet, rather than its own State, as home.

BUT what, you may ask, of Communism and the danger of nuclear war? McCrae doesn't evade the issue, but it's certainly where he's weakest. He imagines a highly-rational Politburo recognising the idiotic incompetence of centralised bureaucracy in Russia and opting for decentralisation. The Russians and Americans form a condominium which keeps the peace of the world during the crucial period in which a global world of optimising pursuers of happiness evolves the institutions mankind needs for a happy future.

We must always remember that we cannot know the future, which is the outer space of political argument. That outer space has in recent decades been dominated by the doom-mongering salesmen of government by experts and bureaucrats. The liberating optimism of these two volumes may lack a necessary sense of danger, but it helps to redress the balance and

OBJECTIONS TO GRANT PROPOSAL

SIR—It is right that there has been a widespread revolt against Sir Keith Joseph's proposals on university grants and it is to be hoped that the 150-plus Conservative M Ps who signed critical Commons motions on the subject will cause some modification of the Government's thinking.

Brainnower is among the nation's Brainpower is among the nation's greatest assets and our future success depends on exploiting it to the full. Schools like mine will be sending more than 90 per cent of our sixth form on to higher education.

form on to higher education.

Just as we through scholarships and assisted places, aim to see that many pupils are enabled to come here in spite of their parents' limited means, so I regard anything which is going to restrict their University opportunities as not only against their interests but against those of the nation.

The main objections to the Secretary of State's proposals are three: first, that the increase in parental contributions would come hard on the heels of an existing reduction in the minimum grant of £410 a year to £205 a year, which it is proposed to abolish altogether; thus parents already reeling under the existing increase in costs would have to delve further into their would have to delve further into their pockets without any warning which would enable them to plan ahead.

Secondly, although the majority of parents are prepared to make great sacrifices to give their children the best possible education there is a danger.

parents are the product of the best possible education, there is a danger that some potential university entrants, although they have reached the stage of adulthood, will be denied further education because they are reduced to a position of even greater dependence on their parents than they were at school; if 46 per cent already receive less than the full parental contribution many more will suffer if this is increased.

Thirdly, the reduction in grants may well result in the wrong economies being made, for example undergraduates choosing to live at frome rather than reside in a distant university with all the increased costs that that implies,

Science budget

From Prof. Sir HERMANN BONDI From Prof. Sir HERMANN BUILD.

SIR-In your issue of Dec. 1 I am reported as having "said" certain things about the level of the science budget, remarks which your readers could hardly imagine referred to any but its recently enhanced level.

In fact what happened is that on Nov. 30 the National Environment Research Council published its report for 1985/4.

In my foreword to this report, written in July, I, as the then chairman, considered the then foreseen value of the science budget, long before its recent and most welcome enhancement, and my remarks therefore refer to this earlier level.

HERMANN BONDI Master, Churchill College. Cambridge.

Britons under tyranny in Zimbabwe

MacMurrough's statements in his letter of Nov. 24. We rightly state that the victory in the Falklands was a triumph of British arms. We also rightly state that thus we delivered some 2,000 Britons from a harsh tyranny. But we do not say anything about our having left 200,000 Britons under the rule of a much harsher tyranny than the Argentines could have devised.

I refer to what is regarded apparently as a great triumph of British diplomacy, the creation of the so-called Zembabwe out of the real country Phodesia. This is in fact one of the most shameful episodes in British colonial history. As a proof, I would refer only to two cases. those of Colin Evans and Philip Hartlebury Both were held in prison, but acquitted at trial, and then rearrested before they could leave the court room. They still remain in custody of the "free Government of Zimbabwe.'

So Mr MacMurrough is right. The British stand up for the right only when it does not hart them. On that reckoning they should hand over Northern Ireland to the people in Dublin.

Perhaps I am wrong, though. I suppose the Falklands are the key to possibly vast mineral and oil deposits. So it paid

SIR-As a member of the Church of England, I was interested to read the Rev. J. Fordham's letter (Dec. 1) about Eton College.

His letter contains an inaccuracy. It states that "The Church of England did not come into being until the 16th century.'

I would remind Fr Fordham that the Church of England was, and is, the Catholic Church in our land, continuing without interruption from earliest days, as part of the universal Catholic Church. In the 16th century it was reformed, not founded.

It was the Church of Rome that, in this country, did not come into being until the 16th century. (Mrs) E. FITZGERALD

Progressive policies of metropolitan counties

SIR—Mr Kenneth Baker's article "The cost of Livingstone" (Nov. 29) shows a sorry misunderstanding of the vital rôle played by the six metropolitan county councils in the economic and social life of urban England.

His claim that the metropolitan counties are "trying to invent roles for themselves" smugly ignores those policies pursued by these councils which are a direct result of the Government's abdication of its responsibilities. The lack of concern displayed in relation to job creation and urban regeneration has forced the metropolitan county councils to establish progressive economic development policies to fill this vacuum in Government policy.

The Local Government Bill contains plans to transfer selected service provision to district councils which Mr Baker asserts "are more accessible, more accountable." The metropolitan county councils are no less accountable to the local electorate than district councils, and infinitely more accountable than Whitehall civil servants who will have vested interest in the administration joint boards and committees which, if Parliament fails to persuade Mr Baker of the error of his ways, will be respon-sible for over 70 per cent. of the current netropolitan county councils expendi-

SIR-That the National Union of Mine workers can quite freely transfer its sterling funds abroad to banks in the United States, Switzerland and Luxenbourg is entirely due to the suspension of the Exchange Control Act by the Conservative Government in October.

It is ironic that Mr Kinnock and Mr Hattersley have been advocating for some time the re-imposition of the Act now, the effect of which would be to prohibit the transfer of funds abroad by prohibit the transfer of funds abroad by the NUM and make the collection of any fines, etc., a much easier task.

Tailpiece

THE shares of Beauford Group down from their 1984 high of 80p to the current 57p look good value on a yield of 10 p.c. and a price/earnings ratio of 5.6. At least, that is the opinion of one of our regular correspondents and also of the market in the shares.

This manufacturer of heavy machine tools and plant for steel and other industries was in confident mood at the time of the half-time report in October in the sense that the interim dividend was marginally improved and the board stated that the full year's results are expected to show an increase on last year's pre-tax figure of £558,000.

With a present capitalisation of under £2 million, the group has attractions as a possible takeover candidate, but the current price is not depending on this and the shares certainly seem worthy of a better market rating.

A Phillips spokesman said his company knew of no reason why the stock should rise and denied that the Oklahoma based oil concern had taken antitakeover manocuvers in recent months. SHARES of Hambros, the mer-chant banking group, fell 5p to 150p yesterday following a cautious interim statement from chairman, Charles Hambro.

There was both good and bad news from the Government. avoid the risk of throwing good money after bad.

An important consideration must be the decision by the Johnson Matthey board not to recommend the share issue, leaving it to investors to make up their own minds. The board has also warned that there could be further material provisions at Johnson Matthey and that second-half profits will be hit by higher interest charges as well as big professional fees associated with rescuing the company. Since those dire warnings Johnson Matthey shares have almost halved in value.

The main snag for shareholders in failing to take up their rights will be allowing Charter Consolidated to increase its blocking power at the company and the lost opportunity to cash in if British Petroleum does eventually decide to bid for Johnson Matthey on generous terms. Unfortunately for shareholders. BP has been unable to make up its mind ahead of tomorrow's egm.

But so far. British Petroleum has shown little sign of being prepared to pay over the odds for Johnson Matthey and if it decides to walk away altogether shareholders face a period of considerable uncer-

Cautious buy at Alexander

IT IS almost three years since Alexander & Alexander Services, the giant American insurance group, bought a multi-million pound headache that is hurting still, by acquiring Alexander Howden Group. In unravelling the fraud and slapdash accounting discovered at Howden, investigators found a skein of sharp practice they are still following round Lloyd's.

Howden cost £155 million but has made repeated holes in the Alexander figures as underwriting subsidiaries had to be propped up. Jack Bogardus, A & A chairman, is now embarking on the acquisition of another insurance broking company but in the purchase of Reed Stenhouse announced yesterday, he is certain no comparable problems are likely to be encountered. He is not the only one to have investigated carefully. Alexander has made the takeover subject to. an acceptable opinion of independent public accountants with respect to the treatment of the transaction plus clearance lawyers, as part of a "due dili-gence analysis." But Reed Stenhouse in its turn has gone through Alexander with similar care and we are satisfied there are not undetected problems" left in the group, said Angus Grossart of Noble Grossart, Reed's adviser.

Alexander in its turn has been looking for new worlds to conquer, and liked Reed's international retail broking strength, especially in Canada. Australia. New Zealand. Malaysia and France where it was relatively weak. "There is almost no overlap" said Mr Bogardus. That may be why he is prepared to pay £209 million for the company despite the latest results, published with the merger announcement. After a 6 p.c. rise in revenues to C$336 million (£211 million), pretax profits fell 14 p.c. to C$26 million (£16 million). William Wilson. Reed chief executive, pointed out this reflected the period to end-September when the market was in a trough. Mr Bogardus agreed the market was improving Mr Wilson said that as it is an all share offer - two Alexander

Modest uplift in reserves

Bartain's reserves rose by $143° million to $15.496 million after allowing for $212 million worth of new overseas borrowings and $31 million of repayments on existing @ debts. The underlying rise was, therefore a very modest $12. million, which followed an equally modest fall of $52 million in October, Last month saw a sharp rally in Steeling from $1.20% to $1.7740, but it was soon over and sterling was back to $1.21% by the end.

The previous month produced a mirror image experience, opening at $1.25% and dipping to $1.18% before working its way back to $1.2125. It is not, of course, impossible for the ups and downs during both months to wash out by the end of the period to produce a virtual stalemate, and there is certainly little or no inecdetal, evidence of the Bank of England buying or selling sterling over the past two months in anything more than token amounts.

The joker is, however, the balance of payments figures which produced a delicit of $100 million. the Common Market rebate and a deficit of around $1 billion in September. Trade payments do not coincide with the calendar months in which deliveries are made, or " even exactly with the months in . which goods are actually shipped. But sooner or later the trends should match up.

Meanwhile the pound continues to wriggle on the hook created by a generally strong dollar. A sudden weakness in the dollar yesterday could have been caused by the overnight weakness of Wall Street which is now a significant factor in international opinion on the strength of the United States currency. It was enough to send sterling up almost 112 cents to close at $1-2080 in London. But the dollar's weakness benefited con- ? nental currencies even more and the pound fell 2.20 pfennigs to 5.7050 marks.

Final Dividend Increased

The profit for the financial year attributable to the nbers of the Company is £24.7 million. The directors recommend a final dividend of 2.756 pence per share on the Ordinary shares which represents an increase of 12.5 per cent over last year's final dividend. With the interim dividend already paid, dividends total 4.356 pence per share, absorbing £12,212,000. Together with the related tax credit at the rate of 30 per cent the total dividend is the equivalent of 6.223 pence per share for the year.

Profits increased by £7 million

The Group's profit before taxation for the financial year to 1 September 1984 was £51.1 million compared with £44.1 million for the previous year. External sales, excluding the agricultural division, increased from £1,180 million to £1,230 million.

The record profits were attributable to a general improvement in the results of most parts of the Group with good increases from our flour milling, packaged cake and grocery activities. British Bakeries, despite a very competitive market place, reported a further significant reduction in its trading loss. Trading profits in the United States were below those of the previous year whereas profits in the Pacific region showed further improvement.

Interest payable for the year was halved mainly as a result of the disposal of the agricultural division at the end of the previous financial year.

An encouraging outlook

The first results from the divestment and stringent rationalisation measures we have been taking over the last three years are reflected in the profits reported above, and I expect further significant improvements to show in 1985

Our profits to date are well ahead of last year and I expect the results for the half-year to confirm this improving trend.

Pre-tax profits have advanced from £79 million to £113 million and the good news is that the oil and gas contribution should not decline in the current year. That first-time profit stems from the 15 months' inclusion of the 1 p.c. stake in the Forties field purchased from British Petroleum. But it also takes in just nine months of Candecca. which added a further 0-5 p.c. to the company's Forties stake.

The combined interest will be ocluded for 12 months in the current year, so profits from there should finish at around the same level as in 1983-84. service

Both communities and companies are today examining ways of improving the efficiency and the value of the services they receive.

With service industries forming an essential part of the infra-structure everywhere, BET's experience in working with industries and governments in our chosen areas across the world becomes increasingly important.

In Africa, for instance, several countries rely on our bus services, just as many hospitals in Britain and the USA depend on our laundry services. In the USA, airforce pilots simulators which incorporate our equipment. And the Royal Navy is equipping several classes of their vessels with our new generation of radio systems ready to serve the national interest worldwide in the 1990's. As Europe's largest diversified services company, operating worldwide, BET plays an important role in the rapidly expanding sectors of many economies.

We do our best to improve standards of living and the quality of life in nations will soon be learning to fly the latest BI bombers on flight

putting experience to good service

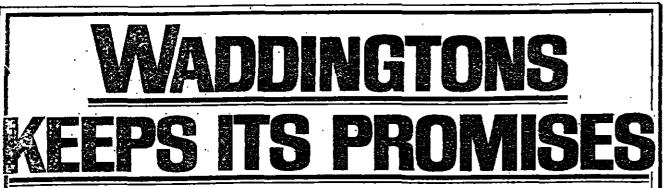

If you would like a copy of our half year results, to be announced shortly, please write to: Neil Ryder, BET PLC, Stranon House, Piccadilly, London W 13 6AS.

by even the most basic kitchen, yet hardly any books have been written about kitchen design.

Mr Robin Murrell, whose company, Studio Two, specialises in traditional kitchens, believes the consumer has been misled into believing that modern design is the best, when in fact the ideal kitchen layout was that enjoyed by our ancestors.

"Kitchen manufacturers have psyched us into believing that standard units and wall cupboards are good for us. In fact, modern worktops are too high to work on and if you want a ladle you have got to go rum-maging through the cupboards to find it " he complained t," he complained.

Murrell has strong views on what ie calls "backstairs" room layouts. he calls "backstairs" room layouts. His ideal kitchen has a walk in larder with slate shelves, a gas-fired range, a huge traditional maple-topped table and plenty of hooks or rails for hanging pots, pans and other otensils.

Family kitchen

of yesteryear

Modern kitchens tend to be stuffed with noisy machinery, but Murrell sees a gradual return of the family kitchen, where children do their homework at one end of the table while mother chops the vegetables at the other. Modern ventilation devices make this possible.

Murrell believes it is possible to construct a traditional kitchen within n area as small as nine feet by nine. feet, but obviously he prefers a much

We visited a house near Northampton where a magnificent kitchen is nearing completion and a nearderelict mansion soon to be auctioned in Boxford, Suffolk, where the original kitchen has been sacrificed in the name of modernisation.

In the new kitchen were many new things being used in old ways. The only thing Murrell hadn't managed to work in was a range, useful for heating water as well as cooking.

He does not believe in designing museums, however. They are bright and paddocks and the five-bedroom places, pleasant to work and relax in, house also has a two-bedroom wing

AT LEAST 10 per cent. of the total with everything visible and at hand, price of a new home is represented even books and spices.

Worktops at the new kitchen were of polished granite with maple surrounds. There was a double sink and mixer taps, and the huge table also had a maple top, though alm could be used. The work surfaces were definitely not in order.

Some of the best traditional furni-ture, tables, dressers and so on, is made by David Whitaker, at Ickleton, near Saffron Walden in Essex.

The second property we viewed was Groton Place, at Boxford, which Watsons is offering for auction on Friday next week. It is a good example of a perfect Georgian house that has been mutilated by successive generations of modernisers. What the old place does have is space and by spending about £50,000 on the "backstairs" area the buyer could have one of Mr Murrell's traditional kitchens including a butler's pantry, housekeeper's room, laundry and pantry.

The problem with this particular house is that it is almost impossible to value and Walsons have even refused to give a guide price prior to auction. My guess is that the reserve will certainly be into six figures. The property has 12 acres, excellent stables and outbuildings and a huge barn which the agents believe could eventually be converted into a separate dwelling though permission does not exist. Unfortunately it would appear that the cost of rescuing the Grade II house would be so great that only a very few people would be willing to take it on. A home has an optimum value which will not be increased, whatever else the owner does. Groton Place, totally restored, might command a price of £250,000, but the purchase price and cost of building work together could well exceed that figure. Mr Murrell's kitchen alone is going to eat into the

One of the most interesting country houses at present on the market is Oxnead Hall, near Aylsham, Norfolk, which is being offered by Savills for around £250,000. The building was originally the servants' wing of a huge Elizabethan house built by Castein Clament Parton into died in Captain Clement Paston, who died in 1599. There are 12 acres of gardens

CHANCE FOR YOUNG CHIEF BUYER TO MAKE A MARK c$15,000 + car - Light Engineering, West of London

Events have conspired to give this small, financially well founded company the opportunity to take a long, hard look at itself. One result has been the creation of a Cirief Buyer slot, closely linked to the M.D. who appreciates the influence the purchasing function, in it's own right, has on corporate profitability. It will no longer be a mere ancillary service to production. We are looking for a professional buyer, possibly graduate, probably late twenties with an engineering background, and certainly with good experience with a company that understands the value of intelligent, well-planned purchasing. The appointed candidate will have the opportunity – indeed, the responsibility – to establish policies and procedures making the most of modern purchasing techniques. At the same time, there's a solid production purchasing requirement, so feet must be firmly on the ground.

GB GOLD COULD BE THE LAST

By GEOFFREY PAGE BRITAINS first gold medal in the Olympic coxed fours, won at Lake Casitas this year, could also prove to be her last.

This will happen if proposals to be put to the congress of the International Federation (FISA) next month are carried. FISA want to include light-rish want to include the next weight events in the next Olympic regatta, but the IOC have intimated that this will be done only at the expense of existing events, and one event that might go could be Britain's gold medal event—the coxed fours.

Yesterday's quarterly meeting of the ARA Council in London strongly opposed this and unanimously passed a resolution in favour of adding lightweight events to the Olympic programme, but not at the expense of existing events.

Changes for women

The ARA Council supported the proposed introduction of world lightweight championships for women in single and double scrils, and coviess fours and also voted for the immediate substitution of coxiess fours for coxed fours for the women's world championships.

Meanwhile. more pressing world championships.

Meanwhile more pressing problems face Britain's international aspirants. As no new sponsors have yet appeared, the ARA have been unable to produce a budget for next year's activities for the various national squads, so no firm programme can yet be drawn-up.

BORDER SAYS 'WE CAN BEAT THEM'

Allan Border, Australia's new cricket captain, feels that the seemingly-invincible West Indies can be besten and hopes for an instant response from his players when the third Test starts in Adelaide on Friday.

Border, whose vice-captain will be Rodney Hogg, the Victorian last bowler, said yesterday: After Brisbane we were not only very disappointed but also angry. It was our performance, the resignation of some things in the media. No-one said anything, but you could feed it."

but you could feed it."

Australia, 2-0 down in the series, have named an unchanged side for Adelaide, much to the consternation of former Test all-rounder Keith Miller who wrote: "The whole thing is a bloody disgrace... the whole lot of them are not worth two bob."

Meanwhile Clive Lloyd the Meanwhile, Clive Lloyd, the tourists' captain, said that his team would be announced tomorrow after taking a close look at the Adelaide wicket. "I'm delighted with the way the boys are playing. Most of them have been in for a lot of cricket over the past few months but they've kept at it and now we're looking good," he said.

Five-year ban for Powell

TREVOR POWELL, the tournament professional, has been fined £1,000 and hanned for five years from membership of the Professional Golfers' Associaton. The decision follows allegations that when competing in a PGA south region tournament at Ealing on May 13 he recorded one stroke less than he actually took at four of the first nine holes, and signed for a round of 72, which should have been 76.

72. which should have been 76.

One of his three amateur partners initially signed Powell's card without checking it, but subsequent conversations revealed the discrepancy.

Powell, 28, yesterday had his appeal refused by the PGA board of management. He appealed in person against the amount of the fine and the length of the suspension.

Lusaka runner-up

The Hitchin player turned professional in 1975 and obtained his tournament player's card at successive qualifying schools in 1976, 1977 and 1978. The following year he finished second in the Lusaka Open on the Safari Circuit, his best achievement as a tournament player.

Pocock, the only change in the side beaten in the first Test, the selectors having wisely decided that a one-day international would not be the ideal game for Martyn Mozon to make his first appearance of the tour.

DVAN GRAY, promoted to opener, hit a sturdy 56 and his captain Jeremy Coney an unbeaten 49 as the New Zealanders reached 131 for two at the close of the first day of their three-day match against a Punjah Governor's XI in Battawagnur yesterday. Coming so soon after the Test, today's match is even more important than usual for England's morale and self-belief. Thus while Moxon is missing the opportunity to sample what is usually one of the best batting surfaces in India, it would hardly be reasonable for him to meet the demands of a limited over game in his first competitive innings.

New Zealand, winning the to on a strang-ordered grassless pitch, were given a sound start of 52 by Edgar and Gray, but all the tourists found reinstaling difficult against a keen side whose attack lacked penetration but kept a good line and length. kept a good line and length.

Triday.

Though today's pitch may have some bounce, it might put a premium on accuracy. If so England could omit Cowans after his hereic efforts in Bombay, and play two spinners in a fine-up which would, with Foster at No. 11, have considerable doth in batting. India named several specialist one-day players in their squad before the first test. Now they omit Sivaramakrishnan, the leg-spinner, and bring in Srikkanth lo open with Gavaskar instead of Gaekwad. No olive branch from his Yorkshire lordship

A graduate of Sandhurst and a former captain in the Irich Guards, he holds some expectedly firm views on leadership, teamwork and discipline. He is most looking forward, he says, to meeting Yorkshire's players and attending matches home and away.

If his Lordship is confirmed as president at the next annual general meeting in March he will then occupy that lofty place from which such illustrious predecessors as Lord Hawke and Sir Stanley Jackson were able to pronounce upon cricket as a whole.

JUMPING STARS ADD SPICE TO WEEKEND CARDS

By HOTSPUR (Peter Scott)

WETHERBY and Cheltenham both hope to stage "Match of the Day" clashes on Saturday. Each track was happy yesterday when the star entries for both Wetherby's Charlie Hall Memorial Pattern 'Chase and Cheltenham's Bula Hurdle stood their ground at the acceptance stage.

Burrough Hill Lad and Wayward Lad dominate the five Wetherby acceptors. Gaye Brief and Browne's Gazette head six left in the Bula Hurdle with Bajan Sunshine heading the remainder, but Ra Nova bas been withdrawn. If the stables of Burrough Hill Lad and Wayward Lad confirm running intentions nearer the time, A Kinsman may well wait for Haydock Park next Wednesday. The Wetherby race would require him to oppose both its leading contenders at level weights, and he could scarcely hope for two large slices of lnck.

Donegal Prince and Rupertino, the remaining Wetherby acceptors, each receives 10lb. This may tempt them there in the hope of place money.

The Ladbroke Christmas Hurdle at Kempton Park on Boxing Day, has £25,000 added money.

Smaga loses Triptych

Triptych, easy winner of the Prix Marcel Boussac at Long-champ in October, and France's best two-year-old staying filly, has been withdrawn from David Smaga's Chantilly stable by Mr Alan Clore, her owner, writes HOTSPUR.

Mr Clore is sending Triptych to be trained in Ireland by David O'Brien, who won this season's Grand Criterium with this owner's other two top-class filly, Alydar's Best.

An avent of Mr Clore's case flay, Alydar's Best.

An avent of Mr Clore's called at Smara's stable earlier this week with written authorisation to remove Triptych and all his other horses. Smara's telephone protest to Mr Clore in California failed to change the owner's mind.

Magri to defend title in London

By KEN MAYS

CHARLIE MAGRI, the former world flyweight champion, will earn one of the biggest purses of his career when he defends his European title for a rival promoter, Frank Warren, at the Alexandra Hockey Pavilion, North London, in January or February.

Magri, managed by Terry Lawless and who has fought only twice outside the Mickey Duff-Mike Barrett combination, was yesterday guaranteed £24,000 by Warren when the purse offers were opened in the European Boxing Union's headquarters in Rome:

Magri will meet the Frenchman, Antoine Montero, who has a £16,000 share, for a promoter who had offered the British boxer £60,000 earlier in his career to fight Liverpool's Keith Wallace.

The Frenchman is no stranger to Warren, who paid him £30,000 less than a year ago to defend the title he then held against Wallace and he beat the British fighter inside the distance.

He said: "We are looking forward to the Cup lie — but it's got to be more difficult for us than the recent League game, her ause Rovers will not sit back this time."

Three weeks ago Mr Williams, tring to stabilise a poor run by his side, redesigned them into a counter-attacking shape, moving himself back to sweeper. The plan misfired, and he will not use it on Saturday.

Mr Cooper is expecting a 20,300 gate "providing the weather is kind" — which would be a massive attendance by contemporary standards for Third Division clubs.

Hunsol banno to be heavyweight, endeavour to succeed where Joe Bugner failed by beating Marvis Frazier at the Alexandra Pavilion. Banjo, who despite being inbeaten in 14 contests, has failed to attract a following with his boring style, is hoping to overshadow the lack-lustre performance of Frank Bruno at Wembley.

"I know that I am boring but I am unbeaten," said the 6ft 4in son of a Nigerian chief. "If I can beat Frazier then I will have convinced the British public that Bruno is avoiding me."

PENNINGTON IN LAST EIGHT

By BILL EDWARDS Lisa Pennington, of Leicester, finding her feet again after the car crash that kept her out of lawn tennis for six months became the last home survivor as the LTA women's indoor circuit came down to the last eight yesterday at Matchpoint, Bramhall Cheshire. She earned the right to meet Elizabeth Ekblom, of Sweden, for a semi-final place with a 6-1: 1-6, 7-5 win over the talented young South African, Elna Reinach, who was runnerup for the junior title at Wimbledon in July.

Industrious and playing with great confidence, Miss Pennington, a former British junior champion, took a 55 lead in the final set. Although she reached match point in the next game she had to wait four more games before claiming her victory. Glynis Coles, the former Wightman Cup player, failed to stay the pace after leading 54 against Gabriella Dinu, of West Germany, the No. 1 seed and was beaten 7-5, 6-5.

It appeared that vesterday was a good day for sponsorshap announcements, for Shirley Strong, the Olympic 100 metres hardles silver medallist, had her 212,000 a year backing renewed by a year backing renewed by Action Car, the Lancashire-based a three years' sponsorable from Glynwed international.

It was also the day that Fietro Mennee, the Ralian wao won the Olympic 200 metres title in Mascow four years ago and is still the world 200 metres record-holder, decided to quit the sport after 15 years because of the widespread use of drugs. Mennea, 55, said in Rome:

This is no longer the sport that I love; many loop performances are no longer the result of hard training but of something else. I plan to join other leading track stars such as Seb Coe in a war against drugs. TODAY'S HOCKEY

*OXBRIDGE BLUES—The Muse. Shedding his Freudian moroseness, David Suchet now emerges as an urbane, successful, but over complacent writer forced to re-assess both his life and work in this often spitefully with piece by Frederic Raphael. The catalyst comes in the shapely form of Frances Tomelty as a voracious literary critic but Carol Royle as the cosy wife back home also has a few aces up her sleeve. Lots of the usual Raphael brand of sardonic humour spiked with several quite outrageous lines and sexual innuendoes. At times it looks almost like an exercise in self-analysis by the writer whose styfish writing has often concealed a lack of content in this series.

MRS THATCHER CONCILIATORY OVER ULSTER

By Our Staff Correspondent in Dublin

Mrs Thatcher ended her visit to Dublin last night with conciliatory words about Anglo-Irish relations over Ulster, while stressing that the province would remain part of the United Kingdom until a majority wanted it otherwise.

"So far as I am concerned there is no rift between myself and Dr Garret FitzGerald," she said. The Prime Minister and the Irish leader had used the summit to hold brief hilateral talks which were described as very friendly,

After the Chequers meeting more than two weeks ago Mrs Thatcher said: "I have a weak need when the people ask medicated that have a weak need thatcher said: "I have a weak need when people ask medicated that have a weak need that have need th answers. I hope that causes you no problems."
